ANNUAL REPORT
2025

*An individualized look

PRESENTATION

We are pleased to share the 2025 Activity Report of Diálogos Para Construir.

In 2025, our focus remained on quality rather than quantity, a defining characteristic of the Starfish Program. We continue to prioritize supporting one person in building a future as an active member of society rather than one hundred people whose immediate basic needs are met. In other words, we remain committed to addressing long-term needs—going beyond food, shelter, and employment. Even when people have a job, feeling heard and being part of something larger is essential. Direct, personal relationships foster connection, empathy, care, support, and trust. For this reason, participation in the Program does not end with legal regularization or financial independence. Our support continues, and we strive—within our means—to ease the consequences of what is often a deeply traumatic migration journey.

Given the positive outcomes achieved through individualized support, reflected in the progress and engagement of program participants, and our desire to avoid dependence on public grants that can limit flexibility in how we operate, we remain profoundly grateful for the generosity of our financial donors, whose contributions allow us to continue this work.

We would also like to thank all those who donate their time. Through our Raindrops Program, these volunteers are like drops of rain that gradually permeate society, encouraging greater engagement and commitment from the wider community.

At the same time, we continue to develop the DPC Vulcano Project, our immigration advisory initiative launched in 2023, which grows stronger each year. The team has expanded with the addition of Max Adam and Sofia Casalla. Although this work often demands more time than we think we have available, the effort is always worthwhile. The number of people who received support navigating the inevitable complexities of dealing with the Immigration Office speaks for itself. Furthermore, the approval of the new Immigration Regulation this year brought additional challenges and changes that made this work even more necessary.

As we close 2025, we recognize that a new chapter is beginning. While it may be more complex, it is no less inspiring. We remain committed to improving our work through the unique, people-centered approach that defines our organization. We also end the year by once again expressing our gratitude to everyone who has supported DPC. Every year we meet more heroes without capes—but with truly generous hearts!

WHO ARE WE?

Diálogos Para Construir is a nonprofit organization based in Seville that works throughout Andalusia to promote the social inclusion of migrants. We support individuals who are at risk of social exclusion. Their vulnerability may stem from a lack of support networks due to their recent arrival in Spain, humanitarian circumstances, the exhaustion of benefits before achieving financial independence and personal autonomy, or the challenges of working without legal protections in the informal economy. In short, many of the difficulties they face are linked to the requirements imposed by Spain's immigration system, which, despite recent improvements to the Regulations, still falls short of fully addressing the realities and needs of the people we serve.

Collaborate in the inclusion of migrants in society. We work with both migrant and host communities, promoting mutual benefits through dialogue.

We believe in a just society that provides its most vulnerable members with opportunities to develop skills for autonomy, independence and happiness.

Dialogue, Social Justice, Diversity, Dignity, Inclusion, Autonomy, Uniqueness and Institutional Health.

WHAT DO WE DO WITH THE MIGRANT COMMUNITY?

At Diálogos Para Construir, we strive to provide support tailored to the unique characteristics and needs of each person participating in our programs. Our experience supporting the migrant community has enabled us to identify a course of action to help each person in the best way possible, using the institutional resources available.

We outline our support process in the following diagram:

VULCANO PROGRAM

DPC VULCANO PROJECT

Obtaining legal immigration status is one of the most fundamental needs of migrants in Spain. Securing residence and work authorization is essential for successful social and labor market integration. The regularization process often raises many questions, and many people lack the financial resources to access professional guidance that would help them navigate the procedures and submit their applications correctly.

In 2025, we continued the DPC Vulcano Project, which provides administrative support to migrants in immigration-related matters, including responses to official requests and the preparation of administrative appeals when necessary.

We continue to be supported by Max Adam, an immigration lawyer. We also benefit from the collaboration of Sofía Casalla, an administrative specialist in Spanish immigration law. Additionally, Mariano Ametller has joined us as a contracted professional to support this project. Together with other DPC collaborators, we continue to offer in-person, free consultations open to the entire migrant community living in Seville and the surrounding area.

VULCANO PROJECT +

Each year, demand for the DPC Vulcano Project services continues to grow. While most consultations focus on immigration-related matters, our case-by-case approach often reveals additional needs, as the individuals we support also require guidance on issues beyond immigration procedures.

All of these initiatives are made possible by volunteers who generously contribute their knowledge and experience to support migrants. However, human resources remain limited in these areas. Each year, we work toward achieving the sustainability needed to build a team of staff members dedicated to this and other DPC programs and projects.

OUT OF PROGRAM

Year after year, our work with migrant communities continues to expose us to situations that fall outside the scope of our organization's regular programs. These are cases we classify as "Out of Program": particularly complex situations, often involving high levels of vulnerability and needs that require highly individualized responses.

In 2025, we did our utmost to provide support wherever possible, coordinating assistance and working collaboratively with other organizations and individuals. We remain convinced that no situation is ever beyond hope and that, with the right support, lives and circumstances can be transformed.

In the face of complex challenges, collaboration and an individualized approach can offer hope to those seeking to transform their lives.

STARFISH PROGRAM

Through this program, we support migrants who are at risk of social exclusion due to a wide range of circumstances. Many have exhausted the institutional resources available to them without being able to achieve the independence and stability they seek. At Diálogos Para Construir, we place each person's life story at the center of our work, developing support strategies tailored to their individual circumstances and aimed at fostering social, professional, and emotional autonomy.

Our personalized approach enables us to understand each individual's unique strengths, challenges, and needs, allowing us to provide—or identify—the most appropriate support for each specific case.

Starfish Program Highlights:

Total people supported: 36

- ✓ Work permit granted: 22
- ✓ Work permit applications in process: 2
- ✓ Humanitarian cases in process: 2
- ✓ Minors: 4
- ✓ Pending regularization: 6

The Starfish Program continues to grow thanks to the support networks we build year after year, which enable us to provide each person we support with the individualized attention we believe they deserve. We remain committed to the quality of our work, even if that means supporting fewer people.

We continue to work toward securing the material and human resources necessary to support a greater number of individuals.

WHAT DO WE DO WITH THE HOST COMMUNITY?

RAINDROPS PROGRAM

The RAINDROPS PROGRAM is an opportunity to work with the host community through awareness-raising and dialogue sessions where we discuss migration, seek to debunk information that promotes prejudice against migrants, and, above all, call for action!

We also coordinate online and offline advocacy efforts, which allow us to promote positive information about migration across a variety of spaces and formats. We are grateful for the support of DPC's partners and collaborators who join us in promoting these spaces for dialogue and who have shown us that any setting is conducive to reflection on the realities faced by migrants.

We'd like to thank our friends at Uprooted Theater for making room in their artistic program to share stories like those of Alpha and Kone with their audience. Both have been supported by DPC, and every time they share their stories, we learn so much.

Max Adam, a professional collaborator with the Vulcano DPC Project, along with Kone, participated in the roundtable discussion at the First Intercultural-Intergenerational Meeting, "Tejiendo Redes." The event featured testimonials from migrants and was aimed at students at IES El Majuelo in Gines (Seville). It was organized by "Urdimbre," a group of committed women, in collaboration with other social organizations. We applaud this initiative and are delighted that members of the DPC family are taking part in these much-needed DIALOGUES.

Through our MIGRATIONS+ platform, we promote positive communication initiatives on migration developed by other individuals, organizations, media outlets, universities, and others. Social media is also an important tool for DPC that helps us share our work with the public and join forces with other movements and campaigns aligned with our mission.

INSTITUTIONAL STRENGTHENING

Our work is made possible by the commitment of those who—mostly as volunteers—support us and strengthen our efforts in many ways.

Every year is an opportunity to reflect on ourselves and improve! That's why we seek training on topics that can be helpful in the organization's day-to-day operations.

This year, we'd like to highlight the training on immigration regulations led by Sofi Casalla, an administrative manager and immigration specialist who is a collaborator with the Vulcano DPC Project.

This training session was attended by DPC staff, migrants, and interested members of the host community. It was extremely helpful in providing specific information needed to offer advice and guidance on immigration matters. Understanding everything involved in the process of regularizing a migrant's status and fostering their inclusion also helps dispel misconceptions and misinformation, which we believe is essential. We thank Sofi for her time and everyone who participated!

We have also participated in training sessions led by organizations that, like DPC, work with the migrant community. These sessions have provided opportunities for reflection and offered tools on topics such as communicating about migration and sharing experiences in advocacy to prevent racism and xenophobia. We celebrate and are grateful to have been part of the training initiatives promoted by the Jesuit Migrant Service (SJM) and the porCausa Foundation.

This year, we have continued with all the tasks related to preparing and applying for DPC's Public Benefit status. This is a crucial step for our growth as a social organization!

*As of the date of publication of this Annual Report, we have the following information: The Official State Gazette (BOE) dated April 16, 2026, contains Order INT/343/2026 of March 24, which includes the Declaration of Public Utility for DPC.

Construyendo[nos]

In 2025, we continued our “Construyendo[nos]” (building ourselves) events, gatherings where migrants and non-migrants from Diálogos Para Construir come together to talk, listen, and exchange views on various topics.

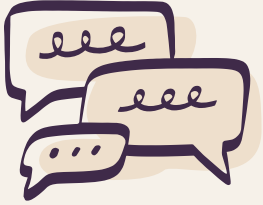

Why does “Construyendo[nos]” imply institutional strengthening for DPC?

- It gives us firsthand insight into the reality of the immigrant community, which helps us design our programs strategically and in a SINGULAR way.
- A close relationship develops between the volunteers (those who donate their time) and the people supported by DPC. Motivation to volunteer grows, and new initiatives even emerge!
- It provides a space where donors can learn, in concrete terms, about the cause they are supporting.
- And, most importantly, WE DEVELOP AS PEOPLE and grow in empathy and solidarity.

It's amazing how much we can learn from others if we're open to dialogue!

Dialogues from The African Diaspora in Seville

We began to realize that the information emerging from informal situations—related to the reality of migration—was highly relevant to the lives of the people we support. This encouraged our president to bring it out of the margins of the organization’s daily activities and give it a chance to take on a more formal role. Thus, in early 2025, she organized a dialogue group, transforming people who had traditionally been the objects of aid and/or research into active participants in reflecting on their own lives.

It is a space where participants can afford to take a break from their daily struggles and, drawing on their individual resources, reflect. A space where they can reflect on their personal situations, generating shared meanings that can prove to be of great help to their lives and to the people in the host community.

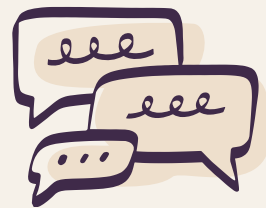

It became clear that there was a central theme running through their life’s work: the impact of the reception period—during which some people emerge with renewed identities, while many others suffer from unresolved identity crises. The need arose to find an appropriate way to address the phenomenon of culture shock experienced during the first few years in the host society. The fact that we could not find answers to everything we heard in this group gave rise to a research question.

It was clear what we, as members of the host society, failed to understand, and no matter how much we searched for resources and literature, we could not grasp it. Unfortunately, very little research has examined what the host country means to immigrants and how they think about national belonging.

Furthermore, few studies on immigrants have examined different dimensions of identification with the new country and with their group of origin (Verkuyten, Wiley, Deaux, & Fleischmann, 2019, pp. 398–399). We began with the concept of a life project as an identity construct that organizes a person’s life by orienting it toward action (McAdams, 2001), which led us to studies on social identity.

The phenomenon of migration is of interest to us, but it also concerns us. It is from this concern, outlined above, that our president proposed combining theory and practice. Unable to find literature on the migrant community's views regarding the host country, this opened the way for her to propose a research project.

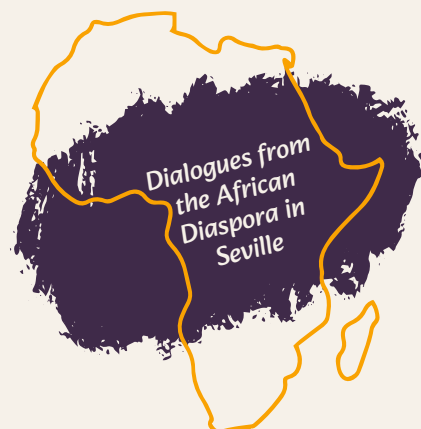

For the purposes of this research, we began with a group of African men, as they represent the largest percentage of participants in the Starfish Program. Once we have the results, the DPC will be open to all types of participants.

This is how a doctoral dissertation began at Pablo de Olavide University in the “Migration Studies” doctoral program. This research analyzes the relationship between the migration process, the reception period, and life projects. While this is not strictly a DPC activity, its close ties to the organization are contributing—and we hope will continue to contribute—to significant institutional strengthening.

Promoting critical thinking and cross-cultural exchange, fostering conversations that challenge our perspectives and broaden our understanding.

COLLABORATORS: PERSONS AND ENTITIES

The work of Diálogos Para Construir is made possible by our collaborators. They are the ones who contribute—whether through their time, money, or ideas—to strengthen our programs. Their willingness, experience, and talent are invaluable! We would also like to highlight other organizations with which we have partnered and that are vital to carrying out our program activities.

TIME DONORS

Susana, regardless of her role as president, volunteers her time to handle general administrative tasks for DPC. This includes monitoring and directly participating in programs, seeking funding, and constantly recruiting volunteers.

Alejandro, our treasurer, continues to volunteer his time to support various initiatives. He remains a leading figure in the field of workplace inclusion for migrants.

Gloria works with the Starfish Program and the Vulcano DPC Project. Her experience is invaluable in providing guidance to the immigrant community on various administrative procedures.

Rosa provides support for the Vulcano DPC Project on days when she is on duty and for other activities as needed. She is also one of the volunteers for the Starfish Program.

Vicky, who now also serves as secretary on the Board of Directors, supports several people in the Starfish Program by providing guidance on financial and/or employment matters. Her contribution has been very important in tasks related to coordination between DPC and the Administration.

Ouassila works with the Vulcano DPC Project, performing administrative tasks on days when the office is open to the public. She has also become our intercultural mediator, serving as a companion and interpreter, primarily for Arabic-speaking individuals.

Max is still with us; he is our go-to immigration lawyer and, without a doubt, one of our greatest contributors of time and talent to the Vulcano DPC Project.

Sofía, an administrative manager and immigration specialist who is Max's partner, continues to provide guidance and advice through the Vulcano DPC Project.

Isabel provides us with invaluable assistance by managing the data related to the Vulcano DPC Project prior to in-person meetings. This ensures a smooth workflow within the team, which we greatly appreciate.

Javier volunteers his time and talent as a photographer, providing us with high-quality images for the audiovisual record of DPC's activities.

Guidance and support with hospital procedures are essential, especially in cases of extreme vulnerability. We would like to thank Pilar Lasheras (photo) and Pilar Sánchez, who volunteer their time to assist some of the migrants in our Starfish Program who are undergoing special medical treatments or routine checkups.

Pablo is a psychologist. He continues to provide support by working with some participants in the Starfish Program to address their mental health and emotional well-being.

Manolo, who—even though he isn't a teacher—is one of the best, continues to help out with tutoring sessions as part of the Starfish Program.

Pablo, Samantha and Thea have formed a great team by creating the Time Bank initiative, which will be implemented throughout the DPC Community. These three people, each with their own unique experiences, are proving to be a great help in shaping this DPC project.

Alma and Mariano are two people currently employed part-time at our organization. We thank DPC for their collaboration beyond their job responsibilities.

We are not forgetting all those occasional time donors who do not appear in this summary!

CASH DONORS

The activities of Diálogos Para Construir are funded by private donations. For this reason, the financial support we receive from our one-time and recurring donors is very important. We are also delighted to continue working with creative and enthusiastic individuals who propose fundraising activities. In addition to providing significant financial support, this helps us raise awareness of our organization among an ever-growing number of people.

We would like to thank Jeremiah and Verónica, who, since our very beginnings, have been a model as a host family. If anyone wonders what an intercultural relationship is like, this family is the answer.

Jackie, Verónica and Laura continue to be a major source of support in organizing fundraising events to benefit DPC. They cover the costs of these events themselves. They also secure sponsorships and recruit more people to help with the organization. They're doing a great job! Thank you for your solidarity and enthusiasm!

We appreciate the ongoing support of Emily and Randa, who donate a portion of the proceeds from their events at Uprooted Theater to DPC.

This year, they also organized two discussions on migration featuring Kone and Alpha, who are supported by the Starfish Program. Many thanks to everyone else who makes up this community of artists.

Celebrate & Donate: constructing one event at a time

In March of this year, we held the Mardi Gras Cocktail Party, a special dinner filled with joy, music, and games, organized to support DPC. Our thanks to Laura, Verónica, and Jackie for organizing the event. We would also like to highlight the donations to the event's auction from: Finca La Fronda, Marardi, Cookie Love Love, Carlsson 1064°, Lama la Uva, Aris Wells Photography y Octopus Garden.

Thanks to Óscar Rivilla, the band "Los Campos", David Baxa, Emily and Lee, and the many other people involved in every detail of this special event.

Thanks to Randa and Emily's initiative, "Thanksgiving" was celebrated once again this year. It was an opportunity to celebrate and spend time with the American community living in Seville! This dinner also served as a fundraiser to support the programs of Diálogos Para Construir.

It was a very special moment to share with family, friends, and colleagues at DPC. Events like this are always of great value to our organization, as they allow us to raise awareness among more people about our work with the immigrant community. And, of course, the valuable cultural exchange we experience through celebrations like these.

Thank you for CELEBRATING and DONATING to support the people we serve!

NETWORKING AND ALLIANCES

Once again this year, we have made it a priority to maintain and strengthen our networking efforts with organizations and groups that share our commitment to the migrant community. We believe that collaboration among organizations allows us to expand our resources, share knowledge, and develop comprehensive responses to complex realities.

We have maintained our relationship with organizations such as the Association of Foster Families and Collaborators (ABRÁZAME) and the NTI Association (New Type of Immigrant), with whom we collaborate by providing immigration advice to migrants referred by them through our Vulcano DPC Project.

We also maintain dialogue with the MDLR network, a team of volunteers who are always attentive to the needs of the migrant community in Seville; we frequently exchange resources with them regarding administrative regulations and labor market inclusion.

We have launched an exciting partnership with the Magtel Foundation to promote the social and labor market inclusion of migrants. At DPC, we refer individuals to participate in the foundation's training programs. Afterward, these individuals have the opportunity to be hired by Magtel based on the professional skills they have acquired and/or honed. This is a significant opportunity to achieve self-sufficiency and professional growth!

We would like to highlight our collaboration with the Cocina Económica Ntra. Sra. del Rosario (community kitchen) and the ELIGE LA VIDA Association, both of which support people facing social exclusion. They work to find dignified solutions and prevent situations of injustice. At DPC, we collaborate with them by providing advice and guidance on immigration matters to migrants referred to us by these organizations. We admire their work and are grateful for the opportunity to join them!

THANK YOU to the many other people who have dedicated their time, professionalism, and commitment to us.

COLLABORATING ENTITIES

Diálogos Para Construir also extends its gratitude for the occasional contributions from the following organizations and companies, with which it has expanded its network. Their collaboration has been crucial in areas such as training, social and labor inclusion, awareness-raising initiatives, and the sustainability of our organization.

EMPLOYER COMPANIES

In a world where many migrants continue to face barriers and prejudice when seeking employment, we appreciate those who choose to open doors. Thank you to these companies and professionals who are committed to diversity!

SUPPORTING COMPANIES

There are companies and professionals who, through their services, help make the work of Diálogos Para Construir more dynamic, efficient, and accessible. We value the empathy, willingness, and social awareness with which they support our work.

Thank you for making a year full of opportunities possible!
